Black History Month happens every October.

It is a time to celebrate the successes of Black people.

It also helps everyone learn about challenges for Black people today and in history.

---

Black History Month stands against racism and helps people understand each other better.

This year's theme is 'Reclaiming Narratives.'

This means Black people sharing their own stories.

It makes sure Black peoples' voices are heard.

And that Black history and experiences are told by Black people.
